Please note these documents are part of the Bush Mechanic Action Research Project (BMARP). Underway since 2000 the project seeks to demonstrate the various attributes and historical manifestations of the largely ignored intelligent artificer created by humans, so as to better emphasise the need to consider humans as artificers. To do this I draw from several experts in the field inc. directly accessing sections from their works. In every instance I source the work. Sometimes I paraphrase their work, so that unlike the body of the report and other documents, in particular the auxiliary documents draw strongly from other authors.

This bush mechanic series is a not for profit exercise and has been a more than spare time 'labour of love for me now for 7 years'. I, in no way claim to be the author of these materials/extracts in this particular document. Nor do I claim or seek privilege or to make money from claiming that the ideas in the overall project are mine or unique or new. Nor do I claim the ideas embodied in this work and the work it draws from. The text comes from others and from my experience particularly over the past 5 years inc. discussions with colleagues, from reading and writing articles, undertaking an exemplar project over 3 years, and this action research project over 5. Simply put the sources I use are the best I have found and speak directly to the point of the project and the Global Problematique that it seeks to engage. In a work of hundreds of pages there will always be an opportunity to say 'he didn't quote the source adequately there or here' etc. In this is I will stand accused however I reiterate this disclaimer and on notification of same will immediately remediate the situation and if and where there are any instances of incorrect or insufficient sourcing, I apologise for this and request that you please let me know and this will be corrected in subsequent versions.

If this is not sufficient or you have any comments, corrections, additions, concerns and questions please email me at paul@kalgrove.com - if possible with a solution that respects the integrity and time this work has taken and I will implement it forthwith.

You are of course most welcome to become involved in, and participate with myself and a group of supportive colleagues extending the Artificer Learning process. An email to the same address will be most welcome.
